Attire: Belle Epoque, or not.

Chateau de Farcheville, one of Europe's most prestigious castles, has been acquired by Tim and Edra Blixeth to enrich Yellowstone Club World (YCW) as the world's preeminent private club with a unique destination in France as part of their diverse global portfolio for YCW members.

BY EDWARD F. PAZDUR, CHAIRMAN & CEO

BOUVILLE, FRANCE (NEAR PARIS): Tim and Edra Blixeth have recently hosted a magnificent two-day Medieval Soirée to introduce 700-year-old Chateau de Farcheville—one of Europe's most prestigious castles—to invited Yellowstone Club members.

"There's no better way to celebrate the rich history of this magnificent chateau and formally introduce it as a part of our diverse global portfolio for YCW members than to host a medieval theme celebration," declared Tim Blixeth, co-founder and chairman.

ber of YCW added: "The chateau's courtyard and exquisitely decorated halls and dining rooms are perfect for entertaining small or large groups. What makes Farcheville different from our other locations is its rich history, architecture, gardens, and spa. You could be pampered all day. You have to see it to believe it."

AN EXCITING STEP BACK IN TIME

"Chateau de Farcheville," said TV superstar and Emmy Award winner Mary Hart, "is an extraordinary place. It's where you can step back in time and imagine yourself living in a different world at a different time. It's a wonderful experience for the whole family to do together."

"Being at the chateau was an incredible treat," said Hart. "Tim and Edra put on a beautiful celebration. The jousting, the combat between two mounted Edra are all about. It's in the details. It's fun and unforgettable. "We at Robb Report are devoted to searching out and reporting on the 'best of the best' of everything. Tim and Edra simply redefine it," said Curtis.

WORLD MASTERS OF CAVIAR

One of the highlights of the Medieval Soirée was the presence of Armen and Cecile Petrossian to oversee the Soirée's caviar tasting event in the foyer of the Hall of Festivities as guests arrived for dinner on opening night.

Armen Petrossian is president and CEO of Caviar Petrossian, Inc., the industry's most esteemed importer of caviar from all over the world.

"Petrossian is the potentate of caviar worldwide," said Dieter Huckestein, president and CEO of YC and YCW. "I mean, if you mention the name to any connoisseur of caviar, or any hotel executive or executive chef, they will know the Petrossian name.

"The Petrossians did us a special favor by coming to our chateau and meeting our guests," said Huckestein. "We strive to feature the best of the best for our members at our YCW events; the personal appearance and caviar presentation by the Petrossians delighted our guests and this is a perfect example of the special touches we put into knights and the medieval music were great. We loved it."

"What was your favorite event in the two day Soirée?" I asked. "Was there anything special, any one thing that you enjoyed the most?"

"Oh, yes," said Hart, breaking into her famous disarming smile. "I loved dining at night in the chateau's spectacular dining hall, the Hall of Festivities, and to have the famous Petrossians serving caviar was classic.

"The food was outstanding," continued Hart, "and we enjoyed the stilt-walkers prancing between tables, snake charmers, acrobats, fire spitters, jugglers and musicians. To sit there and have those performers come through, one after another, was extraordinary."

Even professional critic and avant-garde, Bill Curtis, CEO of Robb Report magazine was impressed. "Only Tim Blixseth," he said, "could assemble the Yellowstone Club World—an array of remarkable luxury destination experiences located all around the globe—and then put it at our fingertips.

"I have never experienced a place like Farcheville before. But, creating unique moments is what Tim and our events for our members." "I have a question." "OK." "Tim Blixseth talks about diversity within YCW's ten destinations. I'm finding that to be true. The Chateau is classic in its diversity. How would you best describe it?"

DO THAT AND FEEL THE TWINKLE

"Well, I think you could use the line 'vive la difference,'" said Huckestein. "Our chateau is intrinsically different from our other destinations.

"It has a completely different history and environment than Tamarindo in Mexico's lush landscape; or our Buffalo Bill Ranch in Cody, Wyoming, in the heart of the Old Wild West; or our Yellowstone Club in Big Sky, Montana, the only private ski and golf club in the world; or the Turks and Caicos island in the Caribbean for sandy beaches and sun you want during winter; or golf in St. Andrews, Scotland; and there's more under way. I believe we have something for everyone's lifestyle," said Huckestein.

"But, the main thing about the castle to me," continued Huckestein, "is that you may not get the twinkle of excitement or feel as immersed into French history anywhere else as dramatically as you would at Chateau de Farcheville. You'll want to walk through and leisurely meander through the buildings, from the chateau's historic chapel, its underground wine cellar, its Cave Bar, Hall of Festivities, and our spectacularly beautiful fruit and herb gardens. Do that and you'll immediately feel the twinkle," smiled Huckestein.

WHERE FAMILIES GATHER

Tim and Edra Blixseth founded the Yellowstone Club in 2000, in Big Sky, Montana. It remains the world's only private ski and golf residential community.

"Our goal," said Tim, "is to provide world-class skiing, golf, fly-fishing, rock climbing, river rafting, and hiking, whether you're 70 or 7."

"It's a spectacular haven," added Edra, "where families can gather in the world's only private ski and golf community. It's family oriented, expansive, yet private. It has always been our goal to replicate the special features and amenities available at Yellowstone Club in Montana to all our locations in YCW's portfolio—for example, all of our locations have great facilities and programs for children.

"The only impact YCW will have on the Yellowstone Club is to enhance it," said Edra.

"Yellowstone Club is, and will always remain, one truly unique kind of family club experience where budding lifetime friendships between kids, parents and grandparents mature—this lifeline will be perpetuated because Yellowstone Club is family owned and managed for families."

The idea for Yellowstone Club World was created after Tim Blixseth realized Yellowstone Club members loved to travel and they expressed a strong desire for exotic locations with deluxe services around the world. "They wanted a new, monumental dimension added to the Club," said Tim. "We had to come up with a World Membership format designed for the economic upper class. Way up," he joshed. "So, Edra and I toured the planet and assembled celebrated recreational assets and named it Yellowstone Club World. You do not have to be a member of our Yellowstone Club (YC) to become a member of Yellowstone Club World (YCW)," said Tim.

That's what YCW is all about. It's one membership that affords you access to all of their destinations...and, it's all one family.
